JUDICIAL MERIT SELECTION COMMISSION )
In the Matter of: The Honorable Frances P. "Charlie" Segars-Andrews Candidate for: Family Court, Ninth Circuit, Charleston County, Seat 1

 Affidavit of James T. McLaren

Personally appeared before me James T. McLaren, who first being duly sworn, testifies as follows:

- 1. I am an attorney licensed to practice in South Carolina. I was admitted to the South Carolina Bar in 1976 and have practiced continuously since that time. The primary area of my practice is Family Law. I am a partner in the Columbia firm of McLaren & Lee, from which I practice statewide. A biographical sketch which details my credentials and experience is attached to this affidavit as Attachment One.
- 2. With Jan Warner (who is now deceased) I served as counsel to Becky Simpson in Simpson v. Simpson, the divorce of Becky Simpson and her husband William Robert Simpson, Jr. Our representation of Mrs. Simpson in this matter followed work done for Mrs. Simpson's mother in law, Daisy Wallace Simpson, who divorced Mrs. Simpson's father in law William Robert Simpson, Sr. in 2004. Through the representation of Daisy Simpson and the work in the elder Simpsons' divorce matter, I became familiar with the business holdings and financial dealings of the Simpson family, and particularly those involving William Robert Simpson, Jr. William Simpson, Jr. was a party to the elder Simpsons' divorce matter because of his business relationship with his father, and for other reasons. The elder Simpsons' divorce was far from simple or straightforward, particularly due to the financial dealings and manner in which assets were held. By representing Daisy Simpson, Mr. Warner and I learned a great deal about William Simpson, Jr.'s financial affairs, which enabled us to provide effective representation to Becky Simpson in her divorce.

- 3. When Mr. Warner and I were first contacted to represent Becky Simpson, she had executed a settlement agreement drawn by William Simpson, Jr.'s attorney Scott L. Robinson and which had been presented to and approved by Family Court Judge George McFaddin. At that time Becky Simpson did not have a lawyer, an opportunity to review or understand the financial affairs of her husband, or sufficient knowledge to enter an informed agreement. The agreement itself was patently unfair, and provided to Becky very little in the way of marital property. One of the first things we did for Becky was to seek and obtain court relief vacating the order approving the agreement, and allowing Becky to undertake discovery, and pursue her legal claims on a more level playing field.
- 4. The divorce case of Becky and William Simpson, Jr. lasted for about two years, ultimately consummating in a trial held before Judge Segars-Andrews on February 14 and 16, 2006. At the outset of the trial we presented for approval an agreement on the custody and visitation issues, and then tried the economic issues (equitable apportionment and attorney's fees and costs). The trial took two full days to complete.
- 5. About one month after the trial, Judge Segars-Andrews sent counsel a memo containing instructions for preparation of an order on the financial issues. Instructions such as these are common in Family Court, as lawyers are frequently asked to prepare proposed orders. After receiving these instructions, which detailed her intended ruling on all the issues presented at trial, William Simpson Jr.'s lawyer, Mr. McKenzie, moved to disqualify Judge Segars-Andrews from hearing the case. The stated basis for the motion was the fact that in the elder Simpson's divorce Mr. Warner and I submitted an affidavit from Lon Shull regarding the issue of attorney's fees and costs, and Mr. Shull is a partner with Judge Segars-Andrews' husband (Mark Andrews). Although Mr. McKenzie served as counsel to William Simpson, Sr., in the elder Simpson trial, it is curious this motion was not filed until after Judge Segars-Andrews announced her intended ruling, and ruled in a manner disagreeable to William Simpson, Jr.

6. On April 14, 2006, Judge Segars-Andrews conducted a hearing on William Simpson Jr.'s motion. As appropriate, she denied the motion, finding no connection between Mr. Shull's service as a witness in the elder Simpson's divorce, and the matters presented to her for trial in the junior Simpsons' trial. At the time of this hearing, however, she told counsel she believed she needed to recuse herself because Mr. Shull had been co-counsel with me in another matter (a personal injury case) which resulted in a significant fee paid to the firm of Andrews and Shull. This personal injury case did not involve Mr. Andrews, was concluded prior to the commencement of the junior Simpson divorce matter, and was completely unrelated to any of the Simpsons or their matrimonial litigation. Regardless, she made known that she believed she needed to recuse herself because the fee was paid to her husband's firm from a case in which I served as cocounsel with her husband's law partner. On behalf of Becky Simpson, Mr. Warner and I requested the opportunity to research and brief the issue. She afforded both sides this opportunity. We presented to her our research in the form of a brief, supported by the expert opinion (in the form of an affidavit) from Professor Nathan Crystal. Mr. McKenzie did not present a memo, and submitted only a brief response which claimed Professor Crystal had a misunderstanding of the facts.

- 7. The research confirmed not only did Judge Segars-Andrews not have a disqualifying conflict of interest, but also that she had a duty to sit. In other words, she was ethically obligated to conclude the case tried before her. Upon review of this research and Professor Crystal's opinion, Judge Segars-Andrews did what she should have done she signed an order detailing the reasons why she was not recusing herself, and then subsequently signed an order consistent with the written instructions she had issued before the issue of recusal ever arose. The fact that she signed a written order which was different from the intention she announced verbally is permitted in any Court in this state. In fact, our law is clear that an order does not exist until it is signed and filed by a judge.
- 8. William Simpson, Jr. appealed Judge Segars-Andrews' orders. The Court of Appeals affirmed both orders, in separate opinions. In affirming Judge Segars-Andrews' decision, the Court of Appeals agreed she had a duty to rule (or "duty to sit"). As such, she fulfilled her ethical and sworn obligations. Mr. Simpson did not pursue any further appeal to the South Carolina Supreme Court. Stated succinctly, he had his day in court, lost, appealed the substantive, procedural and ethical issues, lost again, and abandoned any further effort to change Judge Segars-Andrews' decisions.
- 9. A timeline summary of these events is attached to this affidavit as Attachment Two.
- 10. I have reviewed the transcript of the hearing held on November 7, 2009 before the Judicial Merit Selection Commission, including all of the testimony of William Simpson Jr. and Mr. McKenzie. While the timeline of events at Attachment Two more accurately and in greater detail provides history of this litigation, and while the Record on Appeal and briefs filed in the Court of Appeals from the Simpson appeals (all of which I understand are being made part of the record in this proceeding) provide substantial information to the Commission, from the questions asked and answers given to the Commission at the November 7, 2009 hearing, I can provide new and additional facts to the Commission in the following areas:

- a. To the extent the Commission has any concerns about the use of the computer by Judge Segars-Andrews during the Simpson trial, I can testify from my own observations she was attentive, and from my own experience in other trials/hearings before her that she types notes during the course of the hearing. I am not aware of any instant messaging or other similar communications conducted by Judge Segars-Andrews during the Simpson trial.
- b. To the extent there is any question about the relationship between myself and Mr. Shull regarding the personal injury case and fee paid to Mr. Shull's firm, and the timing of that relationship and fee, I can answer these questions and clarify this relationship ended before the Simpson trial before Judge Segars-Andrews.
- c. The prior business relationship I had with Mr. Shull, which led to a personal injury fee paid to his firm, had nothing to do with any of the Simpson family or anyone connected to or with the Simpson cases.
- d. Mr. Shull's only role in the Simpson matrimonial litigation was as a witness, by affidavit, as to the issue of attorney's fees and costs in the elder Simpsons' divorce trial, but not in the junior Simpsons' divorce. Judge Segars-Andrews had nothing to do with the elder Simpsons' divorce trial. We did not present an affidavit from Mr. Shull in the junior Simpsons' trial before Judge Segars-Andrews.
- e. If there is any question about any business dealings I have had with Mr. Shull or his firm I can answer those questions. Mr. Simpson, Jr. made vague allegations that I have a continuing relationship with this firm. The firm no longer exists, and unless Judge Segars-Andrews' husband is either opposing counsel or serving as a neutral mediator in a given case I have no business dealings with him.

- f. Judge Segars-Andrews made a preliminary decision on the financial issues before realizing the prior business relationship I had with Mr. Shull.
- g. At the time of the Simpson trial I did not have a "history" or "relationship" with Professor Crystal as alleged by Mr. Simpson, although I had called upon him for his opinion and advice on ethical issues, just as I have done with other experts.
- Mr. Simpson had an opportunity, through his lawyer, to respond to Professor Crystal's affidavit.
- Judge Segars-Andrews herself first presented the issue of my prior business relationship with Mr. Shull. In my opinion, the fact that she raised the issue is indicative of her desire to avoid even the appearance of impropriety.
- j. Judge Segars-Andrews' decision on the issue of equitable apportionment is fair and equitable in light of all the circumstances, as recognized and affirmed by the Court of Appeals. Contrary to William Simpson, Jr.'s testimony, Judge Segars-Andrews did not give Becky Simpson "everything". In fact, the ruling provides for a division of the marital estate which reflects about sixty percent of the net assets to Mr. Simpson and about forty percent of the net marital assets to Becky Simpson. In making this apportionment Judge Segars-Andrews actually awarded significantly more of the gross marital estate to Mr. Simpson, because she awarded most of the marital debt to him. She gave appropriate credits for advances made during the litigation and recognized the assets previously received by Mrs. Simpson. It is simply false to represent the outcome of the property division in the manner which Mr. Simpson tried to portray to the Commission at the first hearing. In addition, it is noteworthy that Mr. Simpson did not present independent evidence regarding the values of assets and other financial concerns during the trial, leaving the weight of the evidence before Judge Segars-Andrews as being that which Becky Simpson presented in her case in chief.

- k. Judge Segars-Andrews did not require William Simpson, Jr. to pay all of Becky Simpson's attorney's fees and costs. She ordered him to contribute an amount which was less than half of what Becky spent. A Family Court Judge's decision on the issue of attorney's fees and costs is a matter of discretion, to be determined based on the facts and circumstances of each case. Here, the Court of Appeals recognized Judge Segars-Andrews properly exercised this discretion by upholding the decision on attorney's fees. While Mr. Simpson, Jr. and his lawyer may want the Commission to believe this case was simple, and required little effort, in actuality but for the extensive work done by Mr. Warner and myself, Becky Simpson would have been stuck with the unconscionable agreement which Mr. Simpson, Jr. had her sign, and would have received about one-tenth of what was ultimately determined to be a proper division of assets and debts.
- As with many divorce trials, each side holds a radically different view of the facts.
   Before the Commission, Mr. Simpson and his lawyer attempt to play the role of victim, when the events and circumstances of the litigation were quite different. I specifically recall addressing issues throughout the litigation concerning potential alienation of the children from Becky by Mr. Simpson, Jr., and other difficulties which enhanced the contentious nature of this litigation.

- m. To the extent Mr. Simpson and/or his lawyer challenge the decision to award attorney's fees to Mrs. Simpson, I can provide evidence which supports this award in this case. The Commission appeared inquisitive about awarding fees to a spouse who committed adultery. Becky Simpson's adultery was post-separation, and not the cause for the break up of the Simpson marriage. If the Commission has concerns about the decision to award attorney's fees to an adulterous spouse, I can detail why affording a Family Court judge the discretion to do so is appropriate in light of the substantive and legal issues and circumstances presented in a divorce case.
- n. If the Commission has accepted Mr. McKenzie's statement that the decision on the financial issues essentially awards Mrs. Simpson 60 percent of "everything", I can provide evidence showing why it is inappropriate to lump the fees and property division together and characterize the results in percentage terms.
- 11. I am providing this affidavit to the Commission for purposes of the Commission addressing Judge Segars-Andrews' request for reconsideration. I understand the Commission is considering this request and looking to know from Judge Segars-Andrews the type of information available if the Commission allows new or additional evidence to be presented. As such, in this affidavit I have summarized the areas where I have knowledge, and have not attempted to address each and every point or fact raised by Mr. Simpson or otherwise. I assume the Commission does not desire to re-litigate the Simpson divorce, particularly in light of the Court of Appeals' decision affirming Judge

Segars-Andrews' decision. However, given the testimony from the first day, and the preliminary decision of the Commission regarding Judge Segars-Andrews' qualifications, I am available to testify if the Commission allows further testimony, and welcome this opportunity. Having appeared before Judge Segars-Andrews on many occasions, I am impressed with her abilities and conduct of her courtroom. It would be a travesty of justice if she is not allowed to continue to serve on the Family Court bench.

Sworn to and subscribed before me This 30 day of November 2009.
