AGENCY'S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

SC State PSA values the integration of research, teaching and public service. The program addresses the quality of life opportunities for the citizens of South Carolina with a special emphasis on the underserved communities. The programmatic focus is based on the needs identified by the citizens as the emerging issues impacting their communities. With the SC State PSA funding, many vital self-sustaining and economically enriching programs/activities are delivered and administered to the residents of South Carolina by a qualified staff. SC State PSA promotes an organized research and extension system that addresses quality of life opportunities for limited-resource communities and provides effective stakeholder outreach programs and services in the area of extension, agriculture/natural resources, family life, health and nutrition, youth development, community economic development, education and technology. The term limited-resource focuses on minorities and socially disadvantaged individuals who lack education, knowledge to resources, equipment or money to invest in various resources. A limited-resource farmer makes less than $10,000 a year in farm income. If the programs and activities are not provided to the citizens, many of them would be limited to receiving services within their community.

The people are willing to voice their needs. Underrepresented and underserved populations in the state continue to be a source of stakeholder input. There is a continued focus on providing educational programs to improve the well-being of the family structure within limited resource communities; to promote change in the lives of youth and to strengthen family values through youth development programming. Leadership programming provides assistance to limited resource communities with leadership development education programs as well as community economic development initiatives within communities. Technology is an area of focus to help individuals gain skills utilizing various software programs to encourage communication within a high tech society.

Enhancing quality of life issues is the basis of SC State PSA. The 1890 Research and Extension Program raises the educational consciousness and awareness of national issues that impact the residents of South Carolina. The 1890 Program, with PSA funding, invests in faculty whose proposed studies aligns with the targeted research areas, which show promise in providing solutions to various complex challenges that impact communities in the state and nation that advances the overall research capacity of the university. During the 2016-2017 reporting period, the research efforts of faculty members increased from 12 to 28. The number of professional presentations increased to 87, which was a huge increase from the previous year (9). The presentations were made throughout the United States that informed people of the research going on at South Carolina State University. There were fifty-two (52) articulation agreements with external agencies established. Seven peer reviewed publications were submitted. The 1890 Researchers worked to combat obesity among youth as well as nutritional value; studied food safety issues; conducted leadership and economic development problems; worked with 4-H youth development and families; and examined global food security and hunger issues. SC State Research funded five new research projects in 2016. Two of the studies were in the area of Nutrition and Childhood Obesity, while another was in Natural Resource Management. An additional study was in 4-H Youth Development and Families as well as Sustainable Energy.

The 1890 Extension Program implements educational programs in targeted county clusters across the state. Life-long learning opportunities are provided to help rural and urban participants improve their quality of living. The Extension Program served 11,371 individuals in outreach activities. Four hundred and seventy (470) different outreach activities were sponsored by Extension. A total of 1,071 educational workshops were conducted and 8,515 attendees completed the workshops. There were 9,722 participants overall who reported gaining knowledge through the program activities.

The Small Farm Program offers four major outreach projects to farmers in South Carolina with a special more emphasis on small scale landowners, limited resource, socially disadvantage farmers and ranchers. The Small Farm Program implements outreach services in five 1890 Extension Cluster Areas and surrounding counties across the state. The four outreach projects are Animal Production System, Vegetable Production System, Sustainable Agriculture Production (IPM) Practices and Risk Management Education. One of the underlining objectives of the outreach is to equip all farmers with sound management practices as a must for farming enterprises success and sustainability. They are business men and women and their operations should be considered an integral part of their county/cluster rural economic development. The number of acres affected by the Integrated Crop Management (ICM) was 2,321. Five hundred forty seven (547) farmers were educated on the importance of soil/nutrient management through soil testing. Sixty-two producers reported increased dollar returns per acre or reduced costs per acre. Three hundred thirty one (331) producers indicated they adopted the recommended practices agents suggested and taught. There was a 13% increase of forage fed beef production in the state and region. The small farmers had 622 acres of conservation tillage or other Best Management Practices (BMP).

The Adult Leadership and Community Development Program provided communities with leadership training, financial management, business and job development, family and consumer education and child development capacity that creates opportunities for continuous and sustained growth. With a focus on resource building, education and training, leadership and organizational development, strategic and sustainability planning, the community development team assists socially disadvantaged and economically depressed communities in building their potential to enhance their own resource development capacity from the inside out. Activities are offered in community education and community outreach. Community Education includes the SMART Academy summer camps in Orangeburg and Charleston Clusters. The SMART (Strategies in Math and Reading using Technology) Academy summer camps were held. As community outreach, exhibition booths were stationed at county fairs and expos conducted in Columbia and Charleston, SC. Approximately 616 individuals were reached through the program. The low numbers were affected by the closure of the fair, due to Hurricane Matthew in 2016.

In regard to 4-H and Youth Development, the 1890 Extension Program concentrated on 4 specific planned programs, which included healthy lifestyles, citizenship, food safety and nutrition and SET (science, engineering and technology). Approximately 4,946 people were reached through the delivery of 4-H and Youth Development services. When it came to making healthy food choices after program participation, 2,330 youth said they did. One thousand seven hundred eighty six youth reported an intention to eat less of food/food components, which are commonly eaten in excess. One thousand one hundred forty nine youth reported an intention to adopt healthy eating patterns. Five hundred two (502) youth reported adopting the recommended handwashing practice. In addition, 1,395 youth understood the benefits of physical activity through the implementation of various 4-H activities.

The Public Service Activities funding ensures compliance with the terms and conditions of the USDA/NIFA Cooperative Agreement. The agreement provides federal formula funds each year for the purpose of research and extension. The Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002 (H. R. 2646) requires a 100% non-federal match annually. If the required annual non-federal match as stipulated in the Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002 (H. R. 2646) is not met, the SC State PSA would lose the federal formula funds, which would be redistributed to the states that met the federal match requirement. The matching fund requirements may be found in the Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002 under Section 7212-Matching Funds Requirement for Research and Extension Activities of 1890 Institutions.

The internal and external factors affecting the 1890 Research and Extension Program's performance in the past year, the current efforts and the associated results (referencing information present elsewhere in the accountability report) and any plans now under development to introduce additional changes for the 1890 Program will be addressed. An organizational chart has been included to show the structure and chain of command of the 1890 Program. Factors that may or may not affect internal and external performance of the 1890 Program include: (1) The submission of an approved NIFA Plan of Work (POW) Accomplishments and Results Report. An updated POW Annual Plan Report is usually required, however one did not have to be submitted for the 2017 reporting year, due to NIFA system changes; (2) An official and professional electronic reporting system is needed to collect and interpret data of program activities. Challenges continue to be encountered as it relates to finding the appropriate system for the agency and purchasing tools for training and maintenance requirements of the system; (3) Strengthening program development; (4) The availability of faculty release time to conduct research; (5) Utilizing the Mobile Technology Center (MTC) to expand the technology focus to assist counties across the state with the 1890 programs; (6) Expand the professional development training for Research and Extension staff; (7) Emphasizing the land grant tradition of public service; (8) Assisting academic areas in developing new and innovative programs/activities; (9) Building a Geographic Information Management System (GIS) within 1890 to enhance 1890 Research and Extension and better serve areas with specific concerns and needs; (10) The University's prohibition on hiring or implementation of University-wide hiring freeze regardless of the source of funds will impact 1890 Program's ability to address its staffing needs; (11) Several 1890 Facilities Projects continue to be on the drawing board for implementation. The success of the 1890 Facilities Projects is dependent on a fluid and consistent partnership between USDA/NIFA, 1890 Research and Extension, SC State's Finance Division and the SC Department of Administration. If there is an issue with any member of the partnership, the total project could be delayed or rejected by the approving agency or agencies. The inability to hire individuals with the proven, demonstrated skills necessary to secure external funds would interfere with the 1890 Program's ability to achieve its external funding goal; (12) Providing an opportunity to strengthen and develop more collaborations and partnerships across the state with various entities; and (13) Helping to develop an international programming focus at South Carolina State University.

Funding is the primary constraint to the 1890 Research and Extension Program not fulfilling its mission and achieving its goals. The General Assembly's perception of the stability of SC State University in regards to the 1890 Program receiving the 100% non-federal match requirement is critical and crucial. If funding is cut, the 1890 Research and Extension activities/programs would have to be limited and/or eliminated, which would be detrimental to the citizens of the State of South Carolina, particularly the underserved communities. Furthermore, the 1890 Program would not have the ability to increase or expand new and innovative programs/activities to the limited-resource communities served by the organization. With the fulfillment of the mission and achieving the goals, the 1890 Program would have an opportunity to flourish, become more visible and accessible to the constituents. With the collaborative efforts and partnerships, the 1890 Program is able to provide outreach services to more individuals across South Carolina.

During the next five year cycle of the Plan of Work, the 1890 Research and Extension Program has established several priority goals to accomplish. The priority goals include reconstruction of Camp Harry E. Daniels; developing a demonstration farm at Camp Harry E. Daniels; conducting economic development activities in small towns and rural communities; securing land and constructing cluster centers in target counties across South Carolina; expanding the Mobile Technology Center outreach; increasing the involvement of faculty and the number of inter-disciplinary research projects; expanding internal and external collaborations and partnerships to build the land-grant capacity; expanding support to target groups including, but not limited to veterans; and launching campus/community health initiatives to address health disparities. The 1890 Program plans to increase their external funding to support programmatic and operational initiatives.

During FY 2017-18, SC State PSA will fully implement the restructuring of the Administrative Support as well as the Fiscal Affairs and Grant Management Units. The purpose of the restructuring is to provide the agency with a comprehensive and uniform method of preparing, processing, distributing and filing all internal and external documents and reports in a more professional and timely manner.

Once the restructuring is completed and everyone has been trained and cross trained on the new procedures, the agency will be able to operate at a higher level of effectiveness and efficiency, regardless of where the personnel are stationed or the unit they are assigned. In the absence of a staff member, another person would be able to continue to represent the agency in a professional manner.
