First Steps

First Steps knows nothing about regionalizing services because they've never taken the time to look at this obvious option for saving resources and cutting down on the tendency toward top heavy funding (where a small percentage goes directly to helping kids). If First Steps hired professionals with experience they would know how to consider the topic of regionilization which is a well known subject among experienced public entities <http://www.regionalbestpractices.org/state-officials>.

First Steps

Ask Dan Wuori about First Steps efforts to publicize the private 4K program to eligible families. Did they try to help local providers find families? Ask if they tried to get local child care programs interested in becoming a 4K provider. Ask how many child care providers have been with the 4k program for multiple years or ask how many providers stopped being part of the 4K program after bad expereinces with First Steps.

First Steps

First Steps local offices can find students for 4K slots if Dan and Susan allowed us to get involved. We know where to find families—we know our communities. Dan Wuori saying it is a year round effort to find students and providers to participate in 4K means their website is open year round but they do not aggressively recruit for the 4K program locally.
