The first four years of my professional career were spent at the shipyard in Newport News, Virginia. Upon completing my degree, I left the shipyard and became a project manager for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission working on the AP1000 Design Certification Amendment. Later, I trained to be a construction resident inspector and spend the next 5 ½ years working directly on the VC Summer Units 2 & 3 project. I regularly reviewed engineering documents, including drawings and calculations, to determine if applicable code requirements were being met and performed inspections of in-process site work activities to determine if code and site-specific procedure requirements were being met. See attached resume for more specific information.

In that time I interacted with management from SCE&G and the revolving door of main contractors at the site and I witnessed the evolution of the day-to-day operation of the project. I believe my insight and experience as an invested observer of all aspects of the project will help to shed some light on the real underlying issues that plagued the site.
