SC tops Texas as U-Haul's leading growth state of 2024: What to know about migration trends

Nina Tran Greenville News

Published 12:09 p.m. ET Jan. 3, 2025

From 2021-23, Texas reigned supreme as U-Haul's No. 1 growth state.

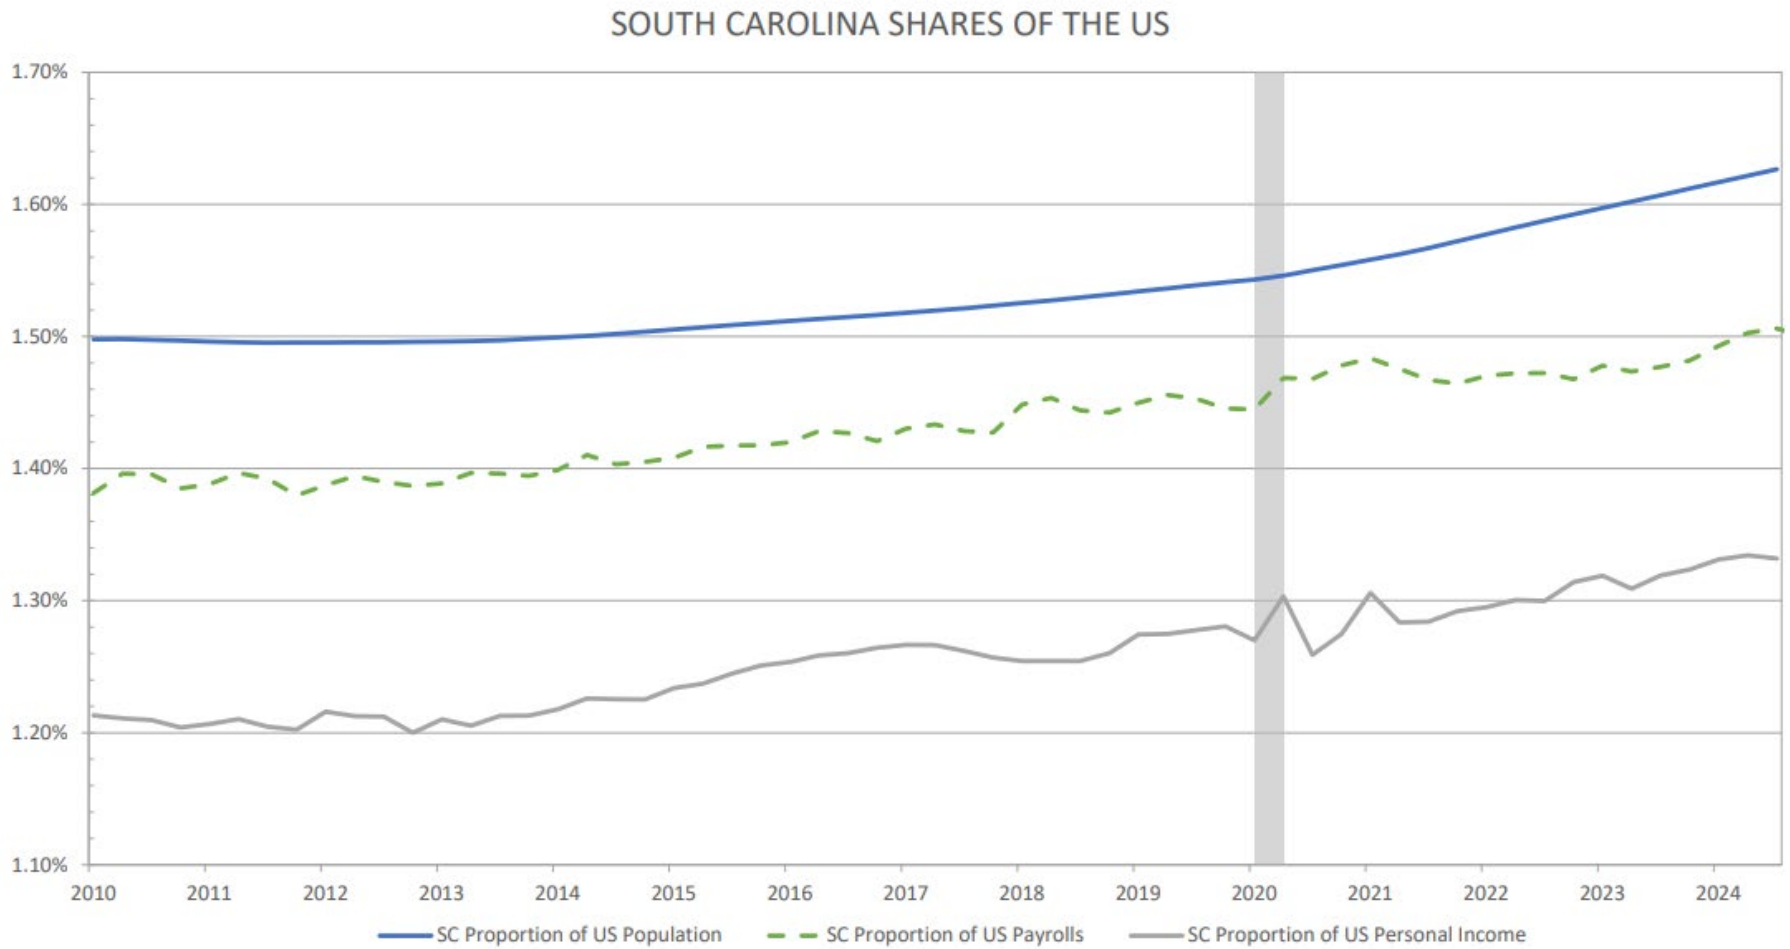

In 2024, a new state changed that, climbing up three spots.

U-Haul customers moving to South Carolina accounted for 51.7% of all one-way traffic in and out of the state (48.3% departures) last year, according to the company's latest migration trends data on growth states today. It is the first time the state has been U-Haul's leading growth state.

"South Carolina's low cost of living is 7% below the national average, making it affordable without sacrificing amenities. The state's mild climate offers year-round outdoor activities, from golfing to hiking the Blue Ridge Mountains to relaxing on its pristine beaches," said Jason Hardin, U-Haul Area District Vice President.

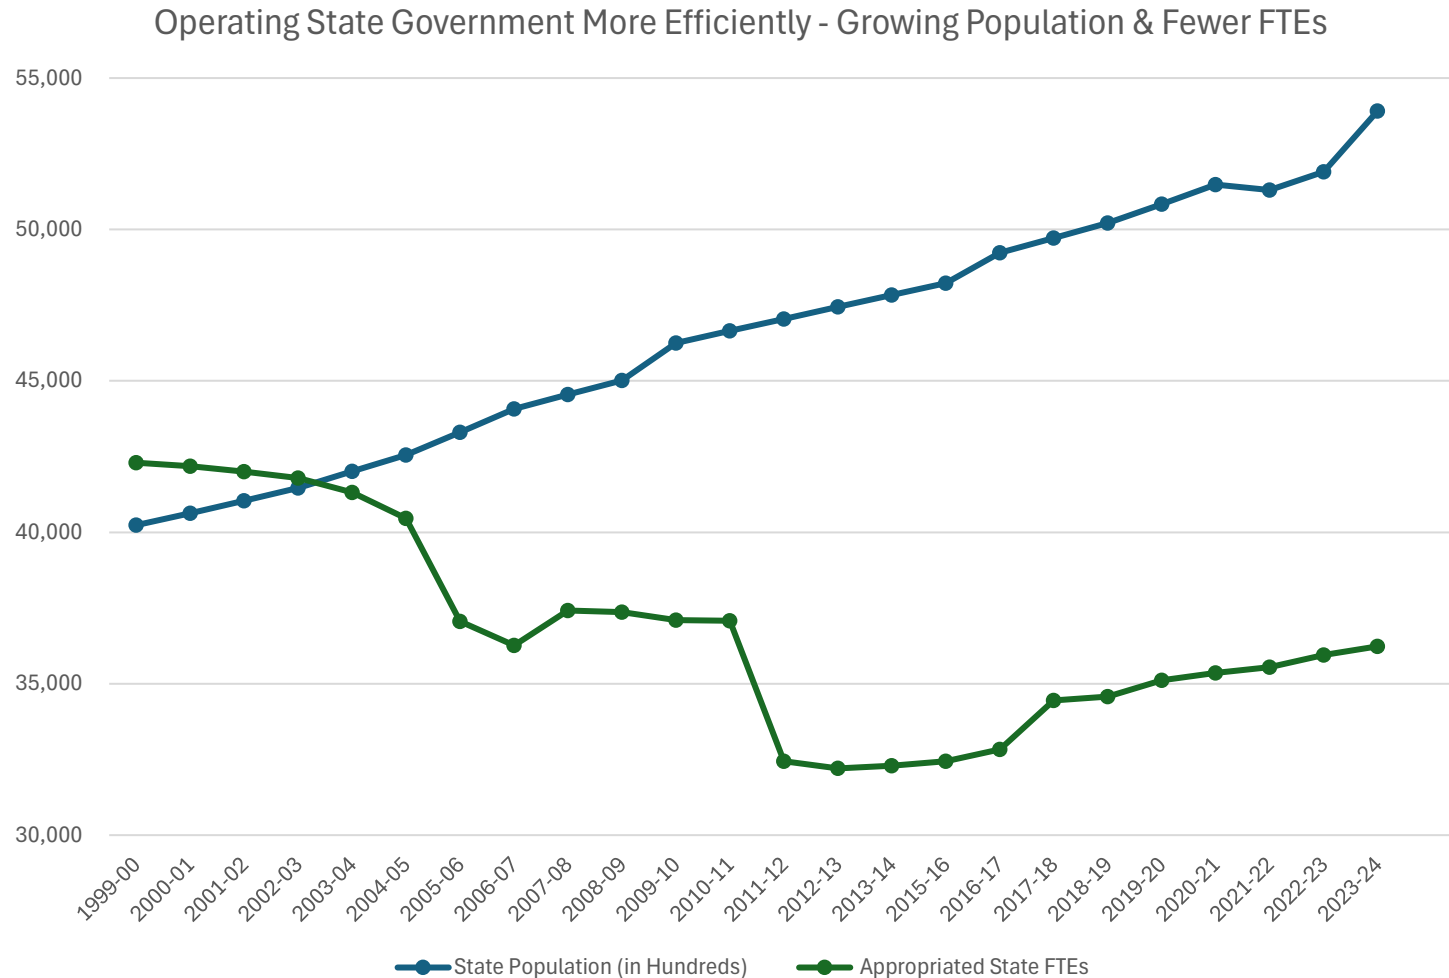

Business is also booming in the Palmetto State, with a manufacturing sector led by Boeing, BMW, and Volvo. Tech and health care sectors continue to expand rapidly, contributing to a 7% increase in employment over the past five years.
