Yes, Family Court, At-Large, Seat Five (2013 to present), Elected. Jurisdiction is set by S.C. Code Ann. § 63-3-510 and 63-3-530.

19. If the answer to question 18 is yes, describe or list five of your most significant orders or opinions and give the citations if they were reported. Also list citations to any appellate review of these orders or opinions.

- (a) Holland v. Holland, 2011-DR-02-1685, visitation case from Aiken County, tried October 29, 2013. In this case, one of my first long contested cases as a judge, I had to decide whether it was in the best interests of two (2) minor children to suspend, indefinitely, their father's visitation with them. The father had failed to comply with a 2006 order in regard to conditions for reunification with his children. While termination or suspension of visitation long term is an extreme remedy, the facts in this case supported a long term suspension. Because of the severity of the visitation suspension, the father was also ordered to comply with a specific plan of treatment, and if completed, he could seek visitation through a future modification action, one (1) year from the date of the final order.
- (b) Sobel v. Sobel, 2011-DR-40-2947, divorce case from Richland County, tried December 9, 10, and 12, 2013. This case involved a disputed adultery claim, a disputed condonation/reconciliation claim, child custody and visitation, relocation, child support exceeding the Guidelines cap of joint income ($20,000.00), private school tuition, complicated equitable division and separate property (trusts) claims, and alimony. The issue involving condonation/reconciliation was crucial due to its impact on the wife's alimony request. The issue of whether certain trust properties of the husband were marital was also crucial to the equitable division award in this case. While I expected a cross appeal on my decision, both attorneys informed me that their clients decided against appeal because of the fairness of my decision.
- (c) Menefee v. Menefee, 2011-DR-02-1685, an Aiken case, upheld and affirmed by the South Carolina Court of Appeals in Terry Menefee v. Delinda Menefee, 2017-UP-301 (Ct. App. 2017). This was a multi-day trial from July and September 2014. The Court of Appeals affirmed my decision as to nine (9) different issues raised on appeal by the appellant-husband. This case involved divorce, custody, visitation, child support, equitable division, alimony, contempt of court, and attorney's fees.
- (d) SC DSS v. Bryant-Martinez, et al, 2013-DR-02-887, this was a DSS permanency planning hearing wherein I decided the minor child should remain in the care of her foster parents and not be reunited with her mother or placed in relative placement with the minor child's maternal grandmother. The case was very contested, but the best interest of the minor child required that the child remain with the foster parents.

While reunification with the parents is the goal in abuse and neglect cases and family members have statutory preference as to placement, the child's welfare demanded placement where the child would be most stable, that is, with the foster parents in this case.

(e) In the Interest of E.B. 2014-JU-18-47,-48, and -49

This case was one of my most important juvenile matters to date. The juvenile was only 10 years old when charged with carrying a weapon (a loaded handgun) on a school bus and pointing it at another student while riding on the bus. I presided over the adjudicatory hearing where the juvenile pleaded guilty to a negotiated guilty plea and the dispositional hearing(s) and review hearing in this case. Because of the minor's age at the time of offense, environmental, medical and psychological factors, a comprehensive treatment plan was devised under my direction to ensure proper punishment to the juvenile along with treatment. In this case, I had to consider many factors when devising an appropriate sentence to effectively address punishment, treatment, rehabilitation, public safety, victim protections and re-entry of the juvenile into a school setting.
