The College of Charleston, founded in 1770 and chartered in 1785, is a comprehensive institution providing high-quality public education in the arts and sciences, education, and business. It functioned as an independent, non-denominational liberal arts college until 1837, when the City of Charleston began contributing to its upkeep, making it the first municipal college in the nation. In 1918, the College also began receiving support from the County of Charleston. The College returned to private status in 1949. Then during the 1970 session, the S.C. Legislature voted to add the College to the State's system of institutions of higher learning and it was officially transferred to state ownership, July 1, 1970. Effective July 1, 1992, under Act 272, the College established a new component for graduate programs and research grant studies, the University of Charleston, S.C. The College is a member of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, Commission on Colleges, the American Association of State Colleges and Universities, the American Association of University Women, American Council on Education, the Association of American Colleges and Universities, Council for Higher Education Accreditation, and the Society for College and University Planning. The College's accreditation was reaffirmed in 2017 by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges. It is an equal opportunity institution.

Election Commission, State

Tel. (803) 734-9060

Created by Sec. 7-3-10, the State Election Commission (SEC) is the chief election agency in South Carolina, and is responsible for overseeing the voter registration and election processes in the State. The SEC maintains the State's statewide voter registration and election management system. The database contains voter registration records for every registered voter in South Carolina. Using this system, the SEC is responsible for printing voter registration lists for all elections held in the State, which average approximately 300 each year. In combination with the driver's license file, the system also serves as the source for jury selection lists in the State. The SEC provides election oversight, including training and advisory services to counties and municipalities to ensure elections are conducted according to law. The SEC administers a mandatory training and certification program for voter registration and election officials. State law mandates the SEC support the statewide electronic voting system. In fulfilling this mandate, the SEC creates election specific database definitions, produces electronic ballots, provides a comprehensive security plan, and conducts training for county election officials and poll managers in the proper use of the system. This training includes printed materials, classroom instruction, and interactive online training. The Agency provides all voter registration and election materials to county election officials and reimburses counties for allowable primary and election expenses. The Agency provides information regarding voter registration and elections to the media, candidates, political parties, special interest groups, and citizens. The SEC coordinates the accumulation and reporting of election results through its website scVOTES.org. The Agency conducts a voter education and outreach initiative known as “Every Vote Matters. Every Vote Counts.” This effort is designed to familiarize voters with the State’s voter registration and election processes and to promote participation in elections. The members of the SEC serve as the State Board of Canvassers after elections to certify election returns, to declare candidates elected, and to sit in a judicial capacity to hear testimony and rule on protests and appeals.

Created by S.C. Code Sec. 41-29-10 to administer the S.C. Employment and Workforce Law which provides for the payment of unemployment insurance benefits, the collection of the unemployment tax from employers, and the operation of a state-wide employment service. The Unemployment Insurance program collects taxes from employers covered by the law and pays out unemployment benefits to unemployed workers, who have lost their job through no fault of their own, under both state and federal law. The Employment Service program operates as a free labor exchange through the Wagner-Peyser Act, where workers and employers are brought together through services offered in SC Works centers located throughout the State. By statute, the agency administers the federal Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act (WIOA) program, designed to strengthen and improve the public workforce system and help individuals find high-quality jobs and careers and help employers hire and retain skilled workers. With a focus on priority populations, such as veterans, youth, and older workers, justice involved, long-term unemployed, and the disabled, partners in local SC Works centers place individuals in suitable jobs and support workforce advancement.

Chartered in 1983 by the State of South Carolina as a public, non-profit corporation, SCRA fuels South Carolina's innovation economy by supporting entrepreneurs, enabling academic research and its commercialization, and connecting industry to innovators. SCRA remains self-sustaining through contributions to the Industry Partnership Fund (IPF), income generated from tenants in their Innovation Centers, the proceeds from the sale of their government contracting affiliate, and returns generated from investments in early-stage technology companies. The IPF is an annual private contribution fund established by the South Carolina Legislature. The Fund offers one-for-one state tax credits to contributors as a way for the State to inject seed money into the growth of promising technology-based businesses and programs. As companies grow, they generate returns which are funneled back into the program to support new companies.
