AGENCY’S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

USC Salkehatchie is a dynamic regional campus serving the rural Lowcountry. The University is one of the anchors in the community and a key for future growth and prosperity in a region characterized by widespread poverty and a declining population. Despite challenges inherent to its region’s economic conditions, USC Salkehatchie successfully strives to meet lofty goals. In line with the flagship’s FOCUS 2023 strategic planning and Palmetto College’s tailored version of it, USC Salkehatchie seeks excellence in five key areas: educating future thinkers and leaders; assembling and supporting a diverse world-class faculty; spurring creativity and innovation/being responsive to community needs; building inclusive and inspiring communities; and promoting recognized institutional excellence.

Educating Future Thinkers and Leaders (Recruitment, Enrollment, Retention)

Despite the challenges that accompany the region’s economic conditions and declining populations, USC Salkehatchie’s student body has held relatively steady over the past decade, with headcount down very slightly (approximately 3%) since Fall 2009. This stability despite considerable headwinds is attributable to program expansions in athletics and academics and to aggressive recruiting, which has enabled the institution to attract a larger percentage of a small market. Enrollment growth is both a short-term and long-term focus for USC Salkehatchie, and the move toward a larger student body is balanced with a desire to recruit and retain students committed to learning. USC Salkehatchie serves as an alternate access point to higher education for students whose situations—whether economic, personal, or academic—will not allow them to begin immediately at a four-year campus. At USC Salkehatchie’s 2019 Commencement, 168 A.A. or A.S. degrees were awarded to students. Furthermore, the expansion of academic offerings through Palmetto College is enabling Salkehatchie to serve more students locally. While many students pursue baccalaureate degrees at other institutions after completing the first two years of higher education at Salkehatchie, many others are now taking advantage of collaborative programs in nursing and education, as well as Palmetto College online classes, to complete the requirements for baccalaureate degrees without having to leave the Salkehatchie area. USC Salkehatchie’s 2019 Commencement included the awarding of 37 four-year degrees through its partnerships. The expansion of academic offerings is essential for the achievement of Salkehatchie’s mission as an institution of higher education. Indeed, Salkehatchie consistently strives to find new and innovative ways to fulfill students’ long-term educational goals and meet the educational needs of its communities. This includes embracing USC’s Graduation with Leadership Distinction (GLD) and overall expansion of experiential-learning opportunities, as well as Salkehatchie’s long-running efforts to form community and local-industry partnerships that facilitate/inspire student internship opportunities and career paths.

Assembling and Supporting a Diverse, World-Class Faculty

Salkehatchie also continues to emphasize faculty excellence by striving to offer competitive salaries; by providing opportunities for greater intellectual challenge through the teaching of upper-level courses in Palmetto College; by providing support for engagement in scholarship and research; and by encouraging involvement in campus and local-community service. The greater University has shown support by making internal grant opportunities available to Palmetto College campuses faculty, and the Salkehatchie faculty has responded by regularly winning these grant awards and thereby enhancing their scholarly production/expertise in their fields.

Spurring Creativity and Innovation/ Being Responsive to Community Needs (Faculty/Student Success/Service)

Educational attainment is the cornerstone of USC Salkehatchie’s mission, but community outreach efforts demonstrate the institution's creativity in meeting local needs.

The Salkehatchie Leadership Institute, the community-outreach arm of the university, assists municipalities and community groups with economic development and other projects that strike directly at the quality of life experienced by the residents of the region. Among its many efforts, the Institute sponsors a Take Flight! Aviation Camp for 8th graders from Allendale County and Colleton County. Partnering with The Boeing Company, this camp provides the opportunity for youth in the service area to learn more about STEM fields and explore the aerospace opportunities in our region. This model camp has been recognized nationally as an innovative community partnership. The Institute also provides leadership training and development for area high-school students and students participating in USC Salkehatchie student government, as well as providing a yearlong advanced leadership program for civic leaders residing in the six counties of Allendale, Bamberg, Barnwell, Colleton, Hampton, and Jasper, sponsored by the local economic development alliance, SouthernCarolina Alliance. The Institute was instrumental in renovations made to the historic Carolina Theatre, accomplished in part through a USDA Rural Development grant, completed in 2013. Since that time, the theater has proved an important space for use by theater classes and has hosted numerous cultural and university events.

USC Salkehatchie also has played a significant role in the revitalization of the region. Two recent initiatives that demonstrate the institution’s commitment to regional improvement are "University Mile" and a community-based “college town” initiative. University Mile is a streetscape project for downtown Allendale developed with the town and SCDOT. USC Salkehatchie and other community partners brought this project to fruition, and work on this project is currently underway. USC Salkehatchie is also developing a “college town” approach to growth for both Allendale and Walterboro that has been embraced by both communities. USC Salkehatchie leaders worked with private developers, as well as the county and city, to build The Reserve, a student housing complex on property adjacent to the USC Salkehatchie West campus in Allendale. The facility, which opened in 2015, was ninety percent full during its first year of operation and continues to be an attractive housing option for students. A similar partnership for the Walterboro campus was recently launched with "Salk Place" and "Salk Manor" apartments for students in the downtown Walterboro area. Walterboro housing options continue to be expanded.

USC Salkehatchie continues to support faculty members who involve students in internships, independent research, and other modalities of experiential learning. Salkehatchie will increase the number of students involved in service learning and Graduation with Leadership Distinction (GLD) honors. Working with the Savannah River Site and other industries, Salkehatchie will identify additional summer internship opportunities for students. Salkehatchie continues to provide campus activities and programs that are designed to enrich the experience of its students and enhance its communities.

Building Inclusive and Inspiring Communities (Organization/Faculty/Enrollment)

USC Salkehatchie strives to attract faculty, staff, and students from a variety of backgrounds through a welcoming, inclusive, and encouraging campus culture. As a result of its service area, Salkehatchie’s student population is approximately 50% African American, and numerous students of various backgrounds, races, cultures, and creeds attend Salkehatchie. The schools’ athletic programs are a magnet for International students who further enrich the campus environment. Additionally, USC Salkehatchie seeks to recruit and retain faculty and staff from diverse backgrounds, especially underrepresented minorities, through targeted advertising and other methods.

Promoting Recognized Institutional Excellence (Student Success/Faculty/Organization/Planning)

USC Salkehatchie was recently recognized by Niche as one of the top 5 Best Community Colleges in South Carolina. Additionally, USC Salkehatchie faculty has been highly successful with scholarly production and grants. At the time of last report (mid Spring 2019), the faculty had over the previous year 27 scholarly publications, 23 presentations at scholarly conferences, and had successfully applied for 12 internal and external grant opportunities. Additionally, two USC Salkehatchie faculty members won prestigious Palmetto College faculty awards in 2019: Math professor Dr. Bryan Lai won the Denise R. Shaw Excellence in Scholarship Award and biology professor Dr. Eran Kilpatrick was awarded the Chris P. Plyler Excellence in Service Award.

To ensure institutional strength, stability, and excellence, USC Salkehatchie is constantly involved not only in systemwide planning, but also in its own long-range planning, work that traditionally occurs in Executive Council, especially during the Executive Council’s fall, spring, and summer retreats. Recent achievements include progress on having 3 months’ operating budget in reserve; improvements to Allendale and Walterboro facilities, including a long-range plan for renovations that will add useful space to the Walterboro campus; the shuttering of Allendale facilities deemed financial and insurance liabilities, with associated creative short-term repurposing of spaces; and implementation of PeopleSoft in HR. USC Salkehatchie continues to enhance institutional planning processes, using assessment methods for continual improvement in administrative support services, including business-office operations, physical plant enhancements and maintenance, and university development.

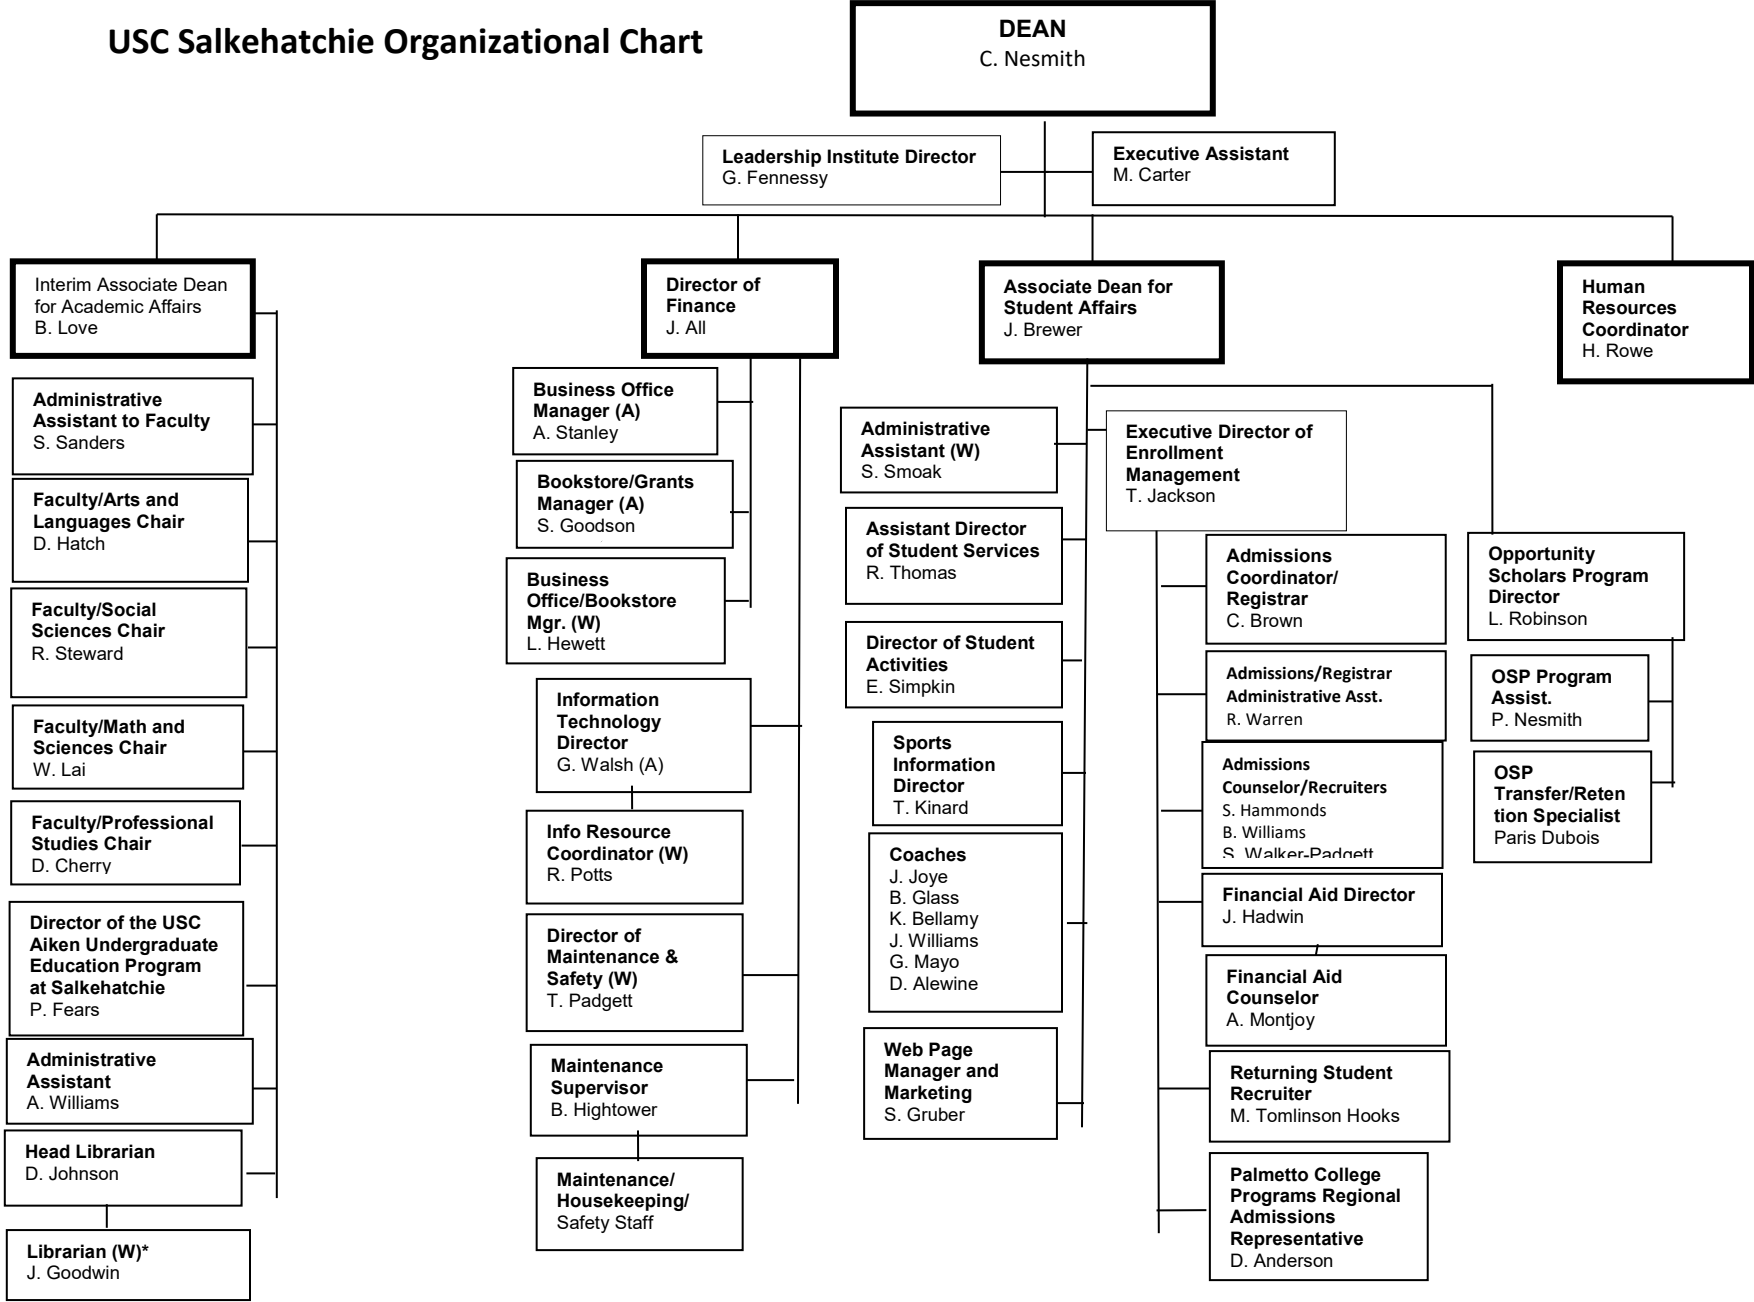

Discussion

USC Salkehatchie continues to have a tremendous impact on its five-county service area, statewide, and beyond. Though Palmetto College’s strategic planning process, a process in which USC Salkehatchie was integral, the institution has provided important and measurable objectives toward ensuring it continues to educate and serve its communities and the state.

Risk Assessment and Mitigation Strategies:

USC Salkehatchie participates in/follows the greater University’s Enterprise Risk Management Program (ERM), which was established with the guidance of International Standards Organization, ensuring that any and all forms of risk are managed in a systematic, transparent, and credible manner. Additionally, USC Salkehatchie’s Executive Council routinely considers local risks or emergencies and acts/reacts according to the University’s standards. Risk is routinely considered in long- and short-term institutional planning.
