USC Upstate creates transformative opportunities by providing rigorous, career relevant, and accessible education; by enhancing the quality of life in Upstate South Carolina; and by being the university of choice for faculty and staff, students, and the community. During 2022 – 2023 USC Upstate launched the Reach Greater Heights campaign, with the goal of engaging new audiences and prospective students and delivering on our three pillars: mentorship made personal, learning made relevant, and generational change made possible.

Risk Assessment and Mitigation Strategies

The 2022 – 2023 academic year at USC Upstate was a year of opportunity and growth. Some of the biggest challenges we faced during the academic year were brought on by the lingering difficulties from dealing with the COVID-19 pandemic in the preceding years. USC Upstate adjusted how we conducted and delivered our classes, how we supported the work of our students, and how we interacted with each other to carry on the business of USC Upstate. The pandemic and its effects on education and student life required USC Upstate to be nimble and quick-footed. We were able to pivot when necessary and remember to always put people first. From this, we are carrying forward our focus on the importance of collaboration, flexibility, and raising awareness about wellness for students, faculty, and staff. Morgan Square Madness created a great new way to engage people from the community of all ages with USC Upstate athletics as we officially kicked off the basketball season.

Together, we worked across campus to right-size our budget through an institutional program review that gave USC Upstate the opportunity to research and realize ways to be more efficient and effective in our programs and course delivery. Through this process, we were innovative and creative in our approaches to problem-solving. In academic year 2022 – 2023 USC Upstate received $3.6 million in funded grants. At USC Upstate we understand the high impact practices such as collaborative learning, mentorship, and research provide students with a sense of belonging. A $750,000 NSF Grant to launch the Career Readiness to Inspire STEM Proficiency and Retention (CRISPR) program boosts the recruitment, retention, and graduation of STEM students. A $50,000 award from PowerED will prepare state students for careers in life sciences through the summer research program ER(Up)T. In addition, a USC Upstate faculty member received a $406,000 NIH grant to conduct SARS-CoV Research with undergraduate students. The Student Success Center received a $452,311 grant to implement Jump Start for Rising and Current First Year Students. This Summer Bridge program provides first-year and second-year students with college credit while learning the non-cognitive skills necessary to be a successful student. The Student Affairs team secured a $303,807 grant that will support the implementation of a new three-tier health and wellness program called Spartans Helping Spartans (SHS).

During the 2022 – 2023 academic year USC Upstate received approval from the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges (SACSCOC) for a level change to offer doctoral programs. The 2023 – 2024 academic year will be the launch of a Doctor of Nursing Practice degree. The DNP program focuses on developing nurse leaders who are innovative and use nursing practices that are based on evidence to reflect the application of credible research findings.

During the 2022 – 2023 academic year, a Strategic Planning Council was formed and planning is underway for USC Upstate’s next Strategic Plan. The Council is working closely with the Chancellor, AACSCU Consultants, administrators, faculty, staff, students, other USC Upstate constituents, and local community members on a new plan expected to launch in January 2024.
