AGENCY'S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

The South Carolina Jobs-Economic Development Authority (JEDA) is a completely self-funded agency, operating primarily through revenues generated from conduit bond issuance activities. Despite ongoing market volatility and economic uncertainty, JEDA continues to support borrowers with innovative financing structures aimed at fostering economic growth in South Carolina.

Bond Program

During fiscal year 2025, JEDA closed 20 bond transactions with a combined par value of $1,180,397,717, resulting in the creation of 1,481 new jobs and the retention of 15,297 existing jobs throughout the state. Borrowers that benefited from JEDA's financing included:

- 5 charter schools
- 7 hospital projects
- 3 higher education institutions
- 2 affordable housing projects
- 1 senior living facility
- 1 non-profit organization
- 1 manufacturing facility

The majority of these 20 projects involved the construction of new facilities, capital improvements, and equipment purchases that contributed to enhanced healthcare services, expanded and improved educational facilities, expanded and improved senior care facilities, and job creation and retention—all benefiting South Carolina residents.

Despite challenges stemming from a rising interest rate environment, JEDA remains optimistic. Periods of economic downturn often present opportunities. Conduit bond financing continues to offer private companies, non-profits, and qualified recycling, manufacturing, and solid waste entities access to lower borrowing costs and extend maturities for projects serving the public good, while also offering potential tax advantages and higher yields for investors purchasing the bonds.

JEDA is also expanding its educational outreach of its bond programs to help further the business and economic welfare of the state. Through its own initiatives and in partnership with bond attorneys and national development agencies, JEDA provides educational and resource materials to potential borrowers. In a regulatory environment under increased scrutiny from agencies such as the IRS and SEC, JEDA also supports existing borrowers with compliance monitoring and ongoing regulatory updates.

State Small Business Credit Initiative (SSBCI) Loan Participation Program

Through the SSBCI Loan Participation Program, JEDA helps de-risk loans for banks, enabling financing for small businesses using only federal funds. In partnership with the Business Development Corporation, JEDA supported 60 South Carolina businesses in obtaining $78,865,263 in total loan financing in fiscal year 2025, of which $13,719,313 was from SSBCI loan participation. Notably, 58% of these businesses were located in Opportunity Zones. As loans are repaid, funds are recycled to support new borrowers. Since the program’s inception in 2011 and renewal in 2022, JEDA has helped 503 businesses finance a total of $504,745,533—all without the use of any state dollars.

SSBCI Venture Capital Program

JEDA also partnered with InvestSC Inc., a South Carolina nonprofit, to provide venture capital to small businesses located or headquartered in the state. Using SSBCI funds provided by the federal government, the program supports entrepreneurial activity, diversifies the state’s economy into high-growth sectors, and fosters technology transfer from South Carolina’s research universities.

In fiscal year 2025, 9 South Carolina-based businesses received a total of $4,074,993 in venture capital funding to grow operations and hire new employees. Of the $50 million in federal SSBCI funds allocated to this program, there is no financial risk to the State. The goal is to create an evergreen fund to strengthen South Carolina’s venture capital ecosystem and drive long-term economic growth. JEDA provides program oversight and works closely with the U.S. Treasury to ensure full compliance with all federal guidelines.

SSBCI Technical Assistance Program

To deliver technical support to small businesses, JEDA selected the South Carolina Small Business Development Center (SC SBDC) network as the subrecipient of the SSBCI Technical Assistance Program. Operating through 20 statewide locations, the SC SBDC provides management training and consulting to both current and prospective small business owners.

In collaboration with Clemson University, South Carolina State University, the University of South Carolina, and Winthrop University, the SC SBDC focuses particularly on outreach to very small and underserved businesses. The technical assistance program targets businesses that have applied or plan to apply for financial support from SSBCI capital programs or other federal/public small business financing initiatives.

RISK AND MITIGATION

If JEDA does not meet its goals for bond issuances, borrowers may be forced to use national issuers or banks, which often charge substantially higher fees and have longer closing timelines. Such delays can harm South Carolina businesses and organizations in urgent need of capital. Additionally, without JEDA’s ongoing compliance monitoring, borrowers may face heightened risks of failed audits from regulatory bodies such as the IRS.

Manufacturing, recycling and solid waste facilities seeking JEDA-issued bonds also face uncertainty due to the volume cap allocation process and limitations. Although interest earned on private activity bonds is exempt from state taxes, the resulting job creation and economic impact help offset the foregone tax revenue. More discretionary capital for borrowers leads to increased employment and spending, potentially boosting state income and sales tax revenues.

In the absence of the SSBCI program, banks would likely deny certain small business loans due to perceived risk. JEDA’s continued role in administering SSBCI is critical to maintaining access to capital for South Carolina small businesses. If JEDA did not manage the SSBCI program, these federal funds could be redirected to other states.

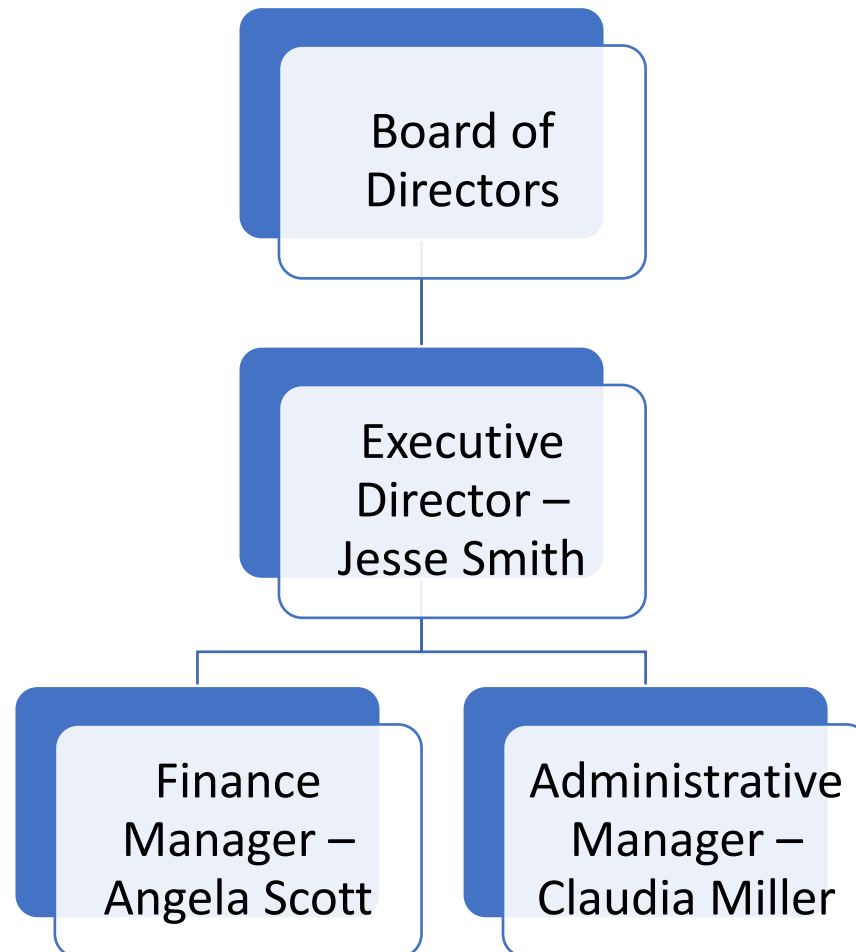

To mitigate these risks, JEDA recommends maintaining current statutes that govern its access to capital. This stability will allow JEDA to continue driving economic growth across South Carolina.

CONCLUSION

JEDA is honored to serve the citizens and businesses of South Carolina by facilitating access to capital that supports growth, development, and innovation. Through its programs and partnerships, JEDA continues to have a meaningful impact on the state’s economy—making South Carolina an even better place to live and work.

Agency Mission

Adopted
in:

1983

The South Carolina Jobs-Economic Development Authority, created by an act of the General Assembly by Section 41-43-10, is a quasi-public instrument of the State. The South Carolina Jobs-Development Authority's mission is to promote and develop the business and economic welfare of the state of South Carolina, by encouraging and assisting in the financing of public and private projects throughout the state, so as to provide maximum opportunities for creation and retention of jobs and improvement of the standard of living of the citizens of South Carolina.

Agency Vision

in:

1983

South Carolina Jobs-Economic Development Authority's vision is to be the premier private activity bond issuer in the State by offering a transparent, inexpensive, and seamless process so that every non-profit, qualified small manufacturer, and solid waste facility has access to less expensive capital through tax-exempt bond rates so that each South Carolina organization can expand and grow in our State, creating new jobs and a better standard of living for the citizens of South Carolina. SC Jobs-Economic Development Authority wants to provide qualified South Carolina organizations with access to capital through its programs to build and grow the State's economy, providing new jobs and a better quality of life for citizens.

Volume Cap Allocation	July	June	As Conduit Issuer, close new private activity bond deals to support job growth and development in the State	Back in 2017, SFAA changed its policy surrounding Industrial Revenue Bonds. For Volume Cap, only two hearings are available throughout the year. While South Carolina is a business friendly state, this practice is not business friendly. Any business considering locating in South Carolina that will rely on volume cap allocation [solid waste/recycling and small manufacturers] must be assured that they can obtain such allocation before they can make such a decision. The current process of SFAA meetings making allocation only twice a year does not make that process conducive to such business decisions.
Microeconomics due to high cost of capital	July	June	As Conduit Issuer, close new private activity bond deals to support job growth and development in the State
