Local Expenditure

This bill allows a local public school district board of trustees to award elective Carnegie units for released time classes in religious instruction when an accredited private school performs the evaluation and assessment of the quality or subject matter of the class. A local public school board's acceptance of an evaluation and assessment of released time classes in religious instruction will not materially alter the board's supervision of these elective units. Therefore, the bill would not have a local expenditure impact from the acceptance of an evaluation and assessment of released time classes in religious instruction from an accredited private school.
