Fiscal Impact Summary

This bill establishes that certain predatory consumer loan actions, when conducted by persons providing consumer installment loans or deferred presentment loans, constitute an unlawful trade practice. Banks and credit unions are exempt from these provisions. Persons subjected to these prohibited practices may pursue all remedies provided by law. Violations are to be enforced by the Attorney General.

The State Board of Financial Institutions (BOFI) anticipates that there will be no expenditure impact to the agency as the bill does not place additional oversight requirements on the agency.

The expenditure impact of this bill on the Office of the Attorney General is pending, contingent upon a response.

BOFI anticipates that this bill may reduce Other Funds revenue. BOFI operates on Other Funds derived from the fees and fines imposed on the entities that it regulates. Implementing new restrictions on these entities could potentially result in these firms leaving the market, leading to a loss of revenue. This potential revenue impact is undetermined as it is unknown whether, and to what extent, firms will leave the market due to this legislation.
