HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES of the
STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA

REGULAR SESSION BEGINNING TUESDAY, JANUARY 14, 2025

(Statewide Session)

~~Indicates Matter Stricken~~

Indicates New Matter

The House assembled at 12:00 noon.

Deliberations were opened with prayer by Rev. Jeff Lingerfelt as follows:

Our thought for today is from Job 42:1-3: “Then Job answered the Lord and said, ‘I know that You can do all things, and that no purpose of Yours can be thwarted. Who is this that hides counsel without knowledge? Therefore, I have declared that which I did not understand, Things too wonderful for me, which I did not know.’”

Let us pray: O Lord, our Father, may we have the humility of Job when he acknowledges that “You can do all things and absolutely no plan of Yours can be thwarted.” Your eternal counsel and Your eternal decrees are providentially brought to fruition in the affairs of all mankind. In Your orchestration, in all our affairs, we ask that You guide this Body to understand that “man plans his ways, but YAHWEH our God directs his steps” in all the affairs of mankind. What comforts this brings into our daily lives. Your care and provisions strengthen us for the tasks of this day. O Lord, grant wisdom and understanding in all our deliberations. May all we do bring praise and glory to our great God. Amen.

Pursuant to Rule 6.3, the House of Representatives was led in the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America by the SPEAKER.

After corrections to the Journal of the proceedings of Friday, the SPEAKER ordered it confirmed.

MOTION ADOPTED

Rep. TAYLOR moved that when the House adjourns, it adjourn in memory of Beverly Dozier Clyburn, wife of Representative Clyburn, which was agreed to.

SILENT PRAYER

The House stood in silent prayer for the family and friends of Representative Clyburn on the loss of his wife, Beverly Dozier Clyburn.

STATEMENT BY REP. REESE

Rep. REESE made a statement relative to the contributions of the South Carolina Legislative Black Caucus in the State House.

South Carolina Legislative Black Caucus
A Black History Month Tribute

Mr. Speaker, Members of the House,
Black History Month calls this body not only to remember, but to reckon with responsibility.

The history of the South Carolina Legislative Black Caucus begins not with ceremony, but with necessity.

In 1970, following the passage and enforcement of the Voting Rights Act of 1965, South Carolina voters elected the first African American members to this House since Reconstruction. Herbert Fielding, James L. Felder, and I. S. Levy Johnson entered a chamber that had not seated Black legislators in nearly seventy years. Their presence was historic.

Their challenge was structural.

Access to this chamber did not guarantee influence within it. Representation did not automatically translate into participation in decision making. Those early members understood that progress would require more than individual service. It would require organization.

By 1975, thirteen Black members of the House formally organized as the South Carolina Legislative Black Caucus, the largest number of Black legislators in this body since Reconstruction. The caucus selected as its first chair Ernest A. Finney, Jr., then a young legislator from Sumter, who would later become Chief Justice of the South Carolina Supreme Court.

From its founding, the caucus articulated a clear purpose. It adopted the motto, "Like limbs, we reach toward the sun, but feed from a common root." That statement was not poetic alone. It was strategic. It affirmed unity, discipline, and shared responsibility in a chamber where those qualities were essential to being heard.

The caucus moved quickly from formation to function.

Its members successfully pressed for appointments to all permanent House committees, ensuring that Black legislators had input across the full scope of legislative business. They worked in coordination with national efforts to support the extension of the Voting Rights Act in 1975. They secured the placement of a portrait of Mary McLeod Bethune in the State House, affirming that Black intellectual and civic leadership belonged within these walls.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 2026

As the years progressed, the caucus expanded its reach and its impact.

In 1983, the election of Reverend I. DeQuincey Newman to the Senate extended caucus influence across both chambers of the General Assembly. By the mid-1980s, with more than twenty members, the caucus played a central role in advancing legislation to support minority business participation, establish the Governor's Office for Small and Minority Business, and create the State Human Affairs Commission.

These were not symbolic victories. They were institutional ones.

Through the 1990s, the caucus continued to grow in size and influence, reaching twenty-five members by 1994 and thirty-four by 1996. During this period, caucus members navigated shifting political majorities, redistricting battles, and evolving legislative priorities while maintaining a unified presence.

In 1998, Representative Gilda Cobb-Hunter became the first African American woman to serve as Democratic Minority Leader in the House, marking another milestone in the caucus's expanding leadership role within this institution.

This history matters because it carries obligation.

The South Carolina Legislative Black Caucus did not emerge to commemorate the past. It emerged to shape outcomes. Its legacy is not found only in anniversaries, but in standards. Not only in presence, but in preparation. Not only in memory, but in stewardship.

Black History Month reminds us that progress in this chamber has never been accidental. It has been cumulative. Each generation of legislators inherited work unfinished and carried it forward under different conditions, but with the same seriousness.

The caucus today stands as both inheritor and guardian of that tradition. It bears responsibility not only to honor those who organized under far more constrained circumstances, but to ensure that representation in this House remains meaningful, effective, and accountable to the people it serves.

Black history in South Carolina is not separate from the history of this body. It is inseparable from it.

The South Carolina Legislative Black Caucus reflects that truth not as a symbol, but as a working institution, built by those who understood that lasting progress requires organization, discipline, and continuity.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 2026

The work is not finished.
But it is firmly established.
And it remains essential to the future of this House and this State.
Rep. Robert Reese
